

Changing WordPress Admin Language...

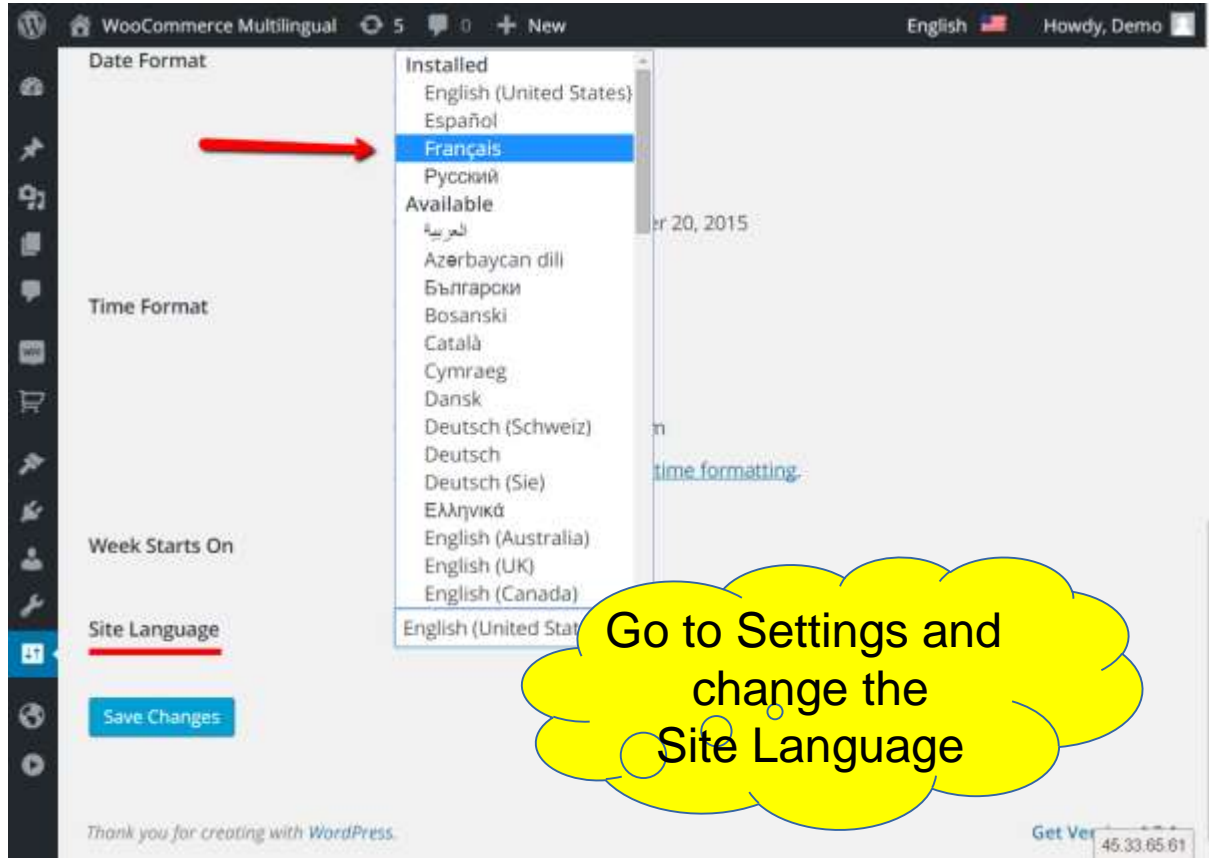

...to install additional
WooCommerce translations

Q: WPGlobus switches languages OK, but WooCommerce button “Add To Cart” remains untranslated!

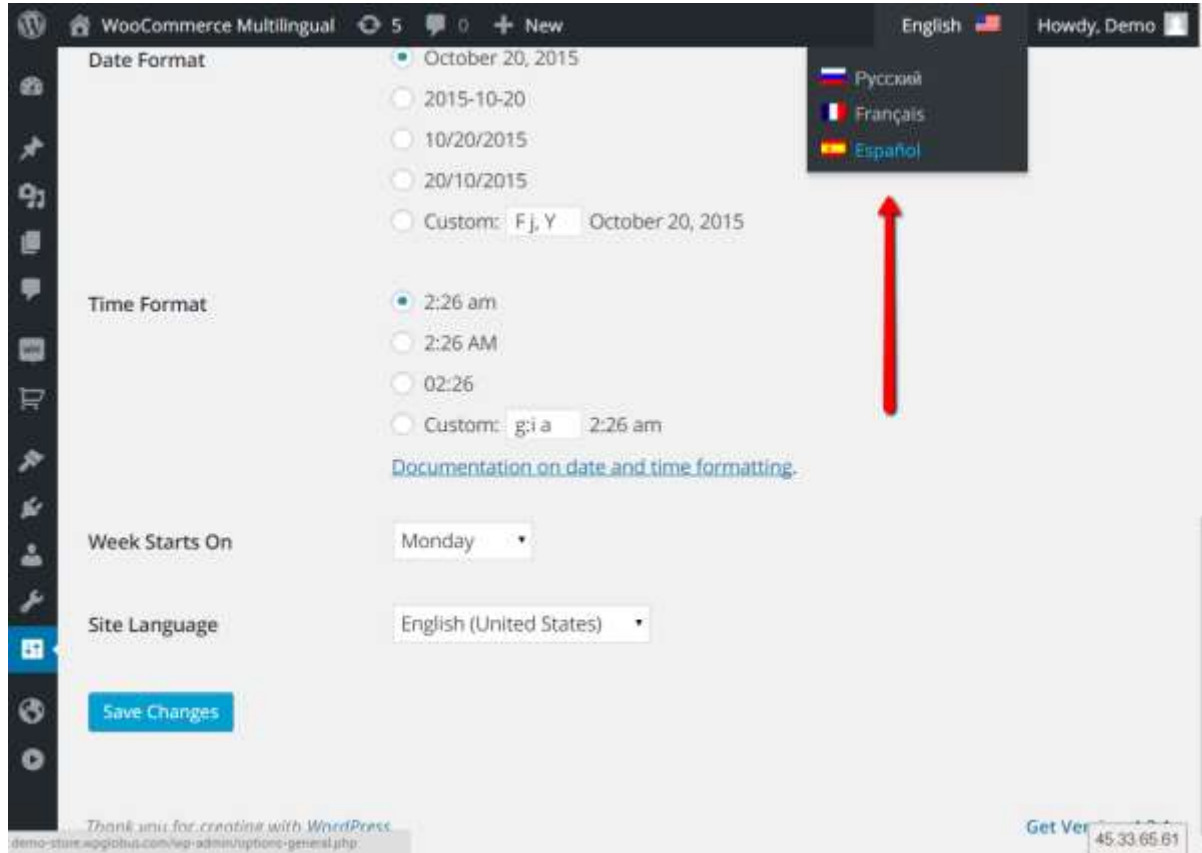

A: WooCommerce language pack is not installed.

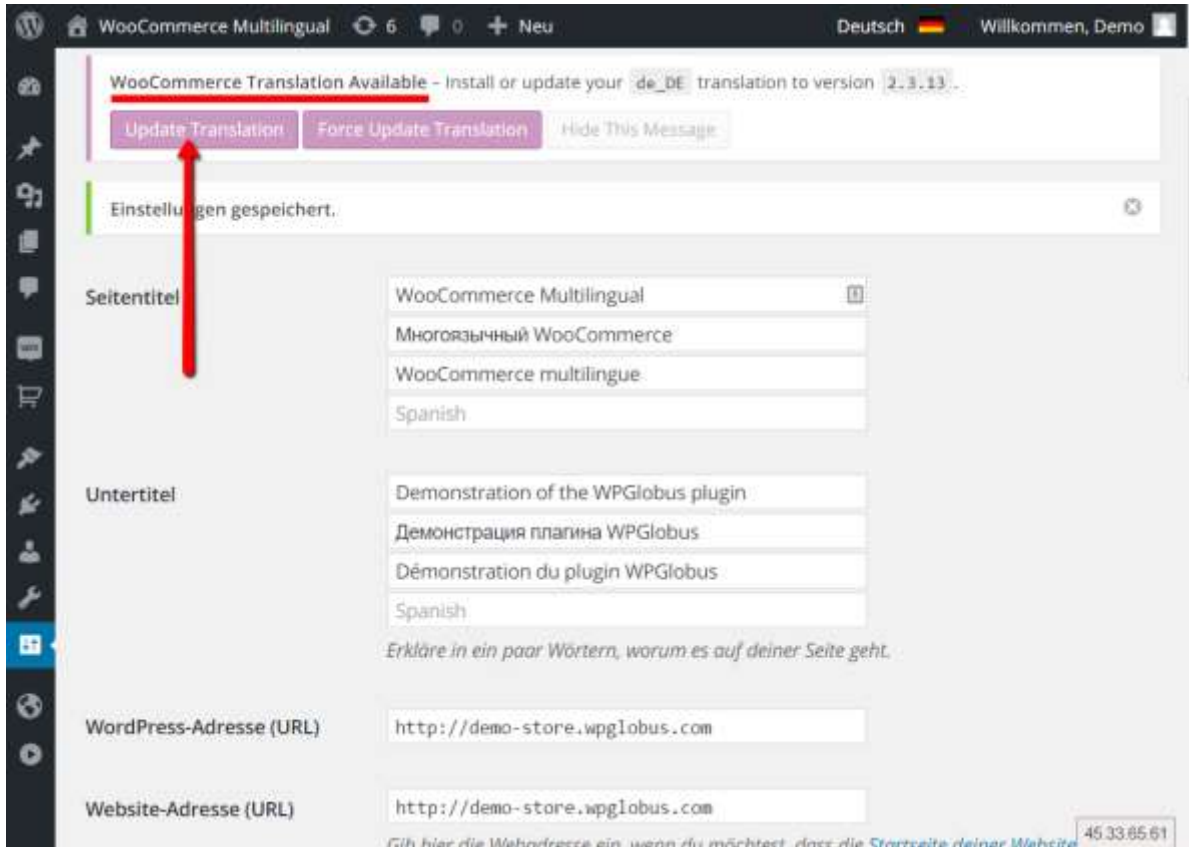

The screenshot shows the WordPress admin interface for 'WooCommerce Multilingual'. The 'Site Language' section is highlighted with a red underline. A dropdown menu is open, showing a list of languages. 'Français' is selected and highlighted in blue. A red arrow points from the 'Date Format' section to the dropdown menu. A yellow cloud-shaped callout box contains the text: 'Go to Settings and change the Site Language'. The 'Save Changes' button is visible at the bottom of the settings panel.

WooCommerce does not come with all translation installed by default. However, when the admin area language changes, WooCommerce offers to install the missing language pack.

Did you know?

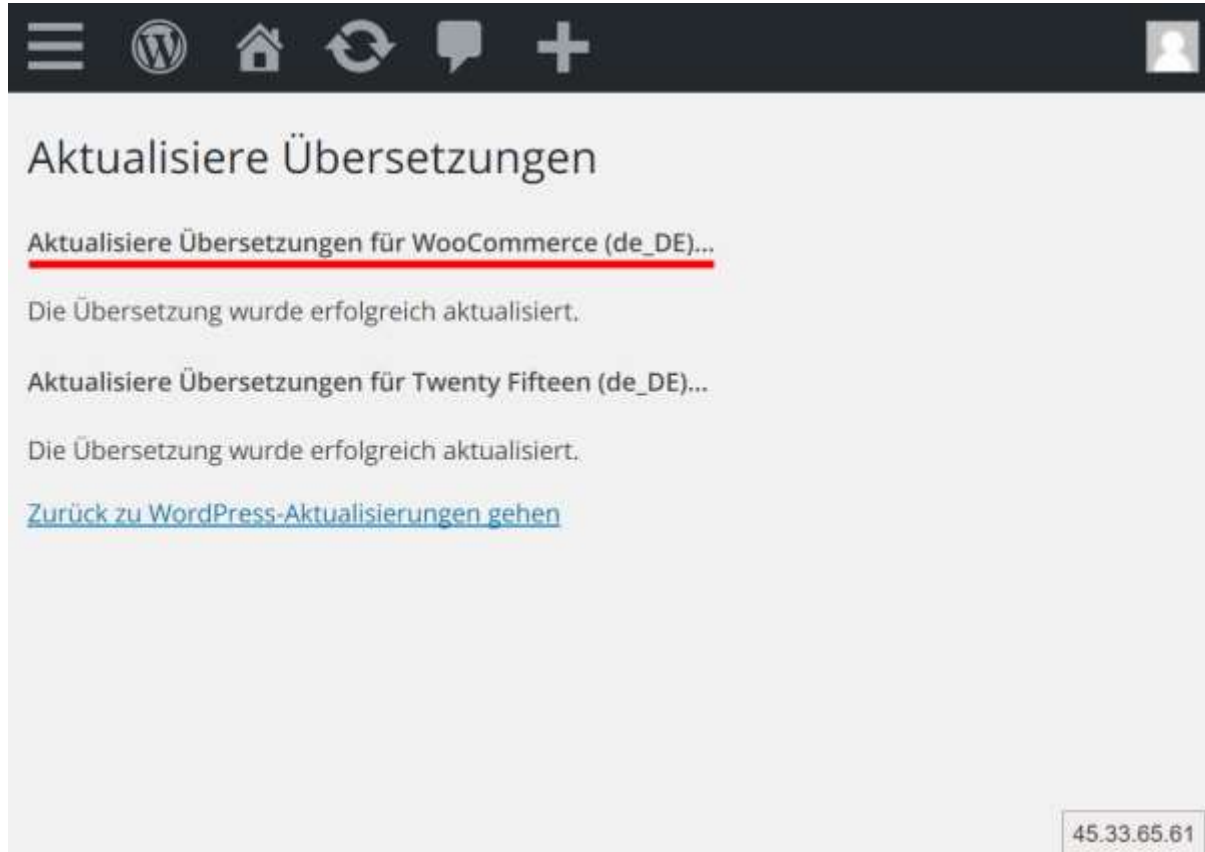

You can later change the admin language back by choosing it from the top bar menu!

The screenshot shows the WordPress admin dashboard for a WooCommerce Multilingual site. At the top, a notification banner reads "WooCommerce Translation Available - Install or update your de_DE translation to version 2.3.13..". Below this banner are three buttons: "Update Translation" (highlighted with a red arrow), "Force Update Translation", and "Hide This Message". Below the notification, a green message box says "Einstellungen gespeichert." (Settings saved). The main content area shows the "WooCommerce Multilingual" settings page, with fields for "Seitentitel" (Page title) and "Untertitel" (Page subtitle). The "Seitentitel" field contains "WooCommerce Multilingual", "Многоязычный WooCommerce", "WooCommerce multilingue", and "Spanish". The "Untertitel" field contains "Demonstration of the WPGlobus plugin", "Демонстрация плагина WPGlobus", "Démonstration du plugin WPGlobus", and "Spanish". Below these fields is a text area with the prompt "Erkläre in ein paar Wörtern, warum es auf deiner Seite geht." (Explain in a few words why it is on your site). At the bottom, there are fields for "WordPress-Adresse (URL)" and "Website-Adresse (URL)", both containing "http://demo-store.wpglobus.com".

After you change the admin language, WooCommerce will show the “Update Translation” prompt.

Click the button...

The screenshot shows the WordPress admin dashboard with the language set to German. The top navigation bar contains icons for menu, WordPress logo, home, refresh, comments, and a plus sign. The main content area displays two update notifications for German translations of WooCommerce and Twenty Fifteen. A link at the bottom allows returning to the WordPress update page. A version number '45.33.65.61' is visible in the bottom right corner.

...and the language pack will be installed.

Now your admin screen looks Greek... sorry – German...

But you already learned how to switch is back to English!

(Click the top bar menu switch)

Now, check the website. The buttons should look OK.
